Mac App Finder is a lightweight Mac application that shows you the full list of applications and other utilities installed on your Mac. The simple interface and the minimum of system resources make Mac App Finder extremely useful for browsing and managing your software. Mac App Finder has three major views: grid, list and details. The grid view displays applications arranged in a convenient 3x3 matrix, with three columns and three rows. The apps are listed according to their category, version and installation date. You can filter the list by version and install date, as well as enable Mac App Finder to search the system with the Spotlight. In addition, you can hide selected applications, and the grid view will list them with the title of their container (library, darwin or app bundles). The list view displays all your software, but arranged in a vertical list, with the newest first. The grid view view is also available for this list. When you click on an application, a window containing a description of the software and its installation status will open. If the software has been installed through the Mac App Store, a link to it will be provided. Mac App Finder is available as a free download on the Mac App Store.
